DIME LITERATURE.

Those Who Have Contributed to the General Demand.

A Talk with Old Mr. Beadle, the Father of the Dime Novel. Brings to Light Illustrious Names.

[New York Cor. Boston Transcript.]

I went down into Williams street the other day and made a visit to the father of the dime novel—Erastus F. Beadle. I climbed up the stairs, expecting to be stopped on every landing and to be asked for the countersign; but, to my surprise, the office was much like any other. There were no rifles in the corner, no scalps that I could see, no "keen, shining blades," no "haunch of venison"—nothing, alas! but the skin of some little animal that was stretched over a frame in the office of the editor. This was the only thing in the rooms that smacked of the "plains," and this, I am afraid, came from a Jersey swamp. The head of the house, Mr. Beadle is an active, pleasant, white-haired gentleman, a little past the prime of life, who received me cordially, and told quite an interesting story about the origin and development of the dime novel.

"The idea," said he, "occurred to me in '59, and I began publishing in '60. The state of the book market then was peculiar. Every one was publishing books with thick paper and wide margins—trying to see how little they could give their readers for a dollar or a dollar and a half. Publishers exchanged books, and took back such as were not sold. Well, I took the other tack, and thought I would see how much I could give for 10 cents; cash sales, no credit. Every one said the project would fail, but it didn't. We first published dime song-books, cook-books, etiquette books, etc., which we bound in a salmon-colored cover. No 'yellow-covered dimes' were ever sent out by me; the color is salmon. The yellow-covered ones were imitations, and were a bad lot. Well, after a while I started the dime novel. Mrs. Ann S. Stephens was the author of the first one—'Madeska,' a prize story, published forty years ago in The Ladies' Companion. I paid her $250 for the right to reprint the story. We sold 10,000 copies right off, and then 20,000. Our other authors? Why, some of the best known writers in the country. Here is Mr. Victor, an old friend of Horace Greeley, my editor for many years; he knows more about these things than I do."

Mr. Victor took up the thread of the narrative and went on as follows: "Our authors are well known men. There's a book by a man who was once a member of the Ohio legislature; another by an ex-governor of Ohio. He never wrote us a bad line. Edward S. Ellis—you know him—wrote us our most popular novel. He was a Methodist, and he went to his minister to know whether he could write a dime novel. He was a school teacher in Trenton, and wasn't 21 when he wrote his first 'dime,' for which he got $35. That was 'Seth Jones.'" "Why," broke in Mr. Beadle, unable to restrain his enthusiasm, "we plastered the country with 'Who is Seth Jones?' and when the excitement ran high we answered the question with that picture you see on that cover, 'I'm Seth Jones.' We sold 60,000 copies of that story right off."

"You see," continued the editor, "these novels introduced either historical or local characters. They followed right after 'Cooper's Tales,' which suggested them. Mrs. A. M. Dennison wrote historic fiction; Judge Jared Hall, of Ohio, wrote 'The Slave Sculptor,' a story of Mexico in Montezuma's time—good names. Then there was Ciara Augusta; you know her, of course. She is a Maine lady. Don't know her? Well, that doesn't speak very well for Boston culture. She's a famous writer. Ellis wrote exclusively for us, and we have paid him as high as $250 for a novel of 40,000 words. Why, we pay better, in proportion to the quantity of matter we accept, than The Atlantic Monthly does! Our stories were very popular, and our rivals of the yellow covers and the Claude Duval series—bad books—began to spring up. What did we do then? Oh, we had to kill a few more Indians than we used to; we held our own against them. But ours are stories of exciting adventure only; there's nothing bad about them. See this article in The North American Review for July, 1864, wherein they are described and criticised. They are pronounced 'exceptionally moral,' and they 'do not even obscurely pander to vice or excite passions.' The libraries have sent those old-style dime novels into the background, though we keep a stock of the best ones on hand still. There are three styles—the Boys' Library (five cents), the Half-Dime Library and the Dime Library—the last being double the size of the others. We won't touch a story that is n't worth $50, and it ought to bring $75 or $100. That 's a $75 story you have there—'Antelope Abe; the Boy Guide.' The public is tired of the blood-and-thunder, sensational run mad style; we give them sweet little stories, of course lively, but not immoral. I wouldn't touch anything of that kind with a ten-foot pole—wouldn't have anything to do with the stuff. For the dime size, containing 75,000 words, we never pay less than $150, and from that to $250; the average is $200.

"Mayne Reid? We have a large list of his works. He would have sunk into obscurity if we hadn't sustained him. He has written certainly fifty stories and sketches for us. He was working for us exclusively for eight or nine years. We made a double number of his 'Scalp Hunters,' one of his most popular stories, reprinting it at his request. He retained of course the English rights in his works. We never paid him less than $600 for a story; that was the standard price, though we may have paid him more at times. I remember he brought his 'White Squaw' down here one morning and said he must have $700 for it, and we gave him a check without reading the manuscript, which contained only about 50,000 words. Reid was always in monetary troubles, but he was a prolific writer, and when he got hard up he would dash off sketch after sketch and come down here with his pockets stuffed. Here is a lot of his manuscripts now that never has been printed on this side. He sent us sketches up to his death. Here is a story entitled 'A Fight in a Flood,' which, with the sketch that St. Nicholas printed recently, was the last that came from his pen. I think that we published for 10 or 30 cents about all the stories of his that appear in the regular editions of dollar books."

Bret Harte Getting Lazy.

[Chicago Herald.]

Bret Harte, ostensibly United States consul at Glasgow, lives at the house of the Belgian ambassador at London, whose wife thinks he is the greatest genius of the age. As long as he will dictate, which isn't very long at a time, she will write. All his recent manuscripts are in her handwriting, and some of them don't read very much like Harte. He is becoming lazy and addicted to brandy and soda.

Manitoba Railroad—Political News—Hudson Bay Explorations—Accidents—Casualties.

A man named John Cassen threw himself under the wheels of a locomotive, at Lindsay, on the morning of the 20th instant, and was cut in two, expiring instantly. He had passed the night in the lock-up, where he had gone for shelter. He told the police officer his name, and said he came from Windsor, and that he had been tramping around the country for the past three months. He had been observed walking up and down the track for some minutes, evidently waiting for the train going north. As the engine approached, he deliberately threw himself across the rails.

Warrants are out at Brantford for the arrest of two Indian brothers named Nash, who a few days ago opened a newly-made grave on the reservation and stole therefrom the body of a ten-year-old girl named Whitby. After severing the head from the corpse the villains split open the skull and removed the brains, throwing the remnants back again into the grave. The outrage was traced by the marks of blood and pieces of flesh picked up in the vicinity. It is thought that the deed was perpetrated on behalf of some medical man.

In the Manitoba Legislature the Government resolutions rejecting the Ottawa terms were read a second time. A resolution was added empowering a special committee, consisting of the Speaker and the members of the Government, to carry on correspondence with the Ottawa Government, and if no modification is offered by the Dominion Government to prepare a statement of claims to lay before the Queen in Council, the statement to be submitted to the Legislature next session.

The semi-annual convention of teachers for Prince Edward county was held at Picton on Friday and Saturday, and was largely attended. A resolution was adopted that, in the opinion of the convention, it is desirable to retain the present system of administering the educational department, until it has received a more thorough trial, before returning to a chief superintendent. The lecture of Dr. McLellan on Friday evening was given to a full house. His remarks before the convention on Saturday were well received.

The telegraph line on the Ontario & Quebec railway was finished at a late hour recently. The work was only commenced on the 1st of April, so that the whole 200 miles has only taken two months in construction. Freight has been moved on the line for some time past, but regular freight trains will not be run for some days yet, owing to the work of ballasting not being finished.

The Quebec Legislature will prorogue towards the close of the incoming week. The session has been one of the longest and least fruitful on record, though it was promised that it would be one of the shortest. Another session will probably be held in the fall. Premier Ross will go to Europe immediatly after prorogation for the benefit of his health, which is sadly broken up.

John Little, the smallpox patient who was sent from Goderich to London some weeks ago, was on Saturday arrested near Woodstock and remanded to the jail at London charged with unlawfully conspiring with J. B. Whiley, M.D., to commit a nuisance. Dr. Whitley's case comes before the Middlesex sessions this week, and Little is wanted as a witness.

It is reported from Elgin County, N. B., that last week Constable James Magle went to levy an execution for taxes on one Douthrit. Douthrit resisted the execution, claiming to have a receipt, and an altercation took place in which Magle got badly hurt. It is reported that Magle has since died. Douthrit is in jail.

Senator McInnes was last week offered, by Mr. George E. Tuckett, a marked check for $50,000 for Dundurn Castle and park. The amount was not large enough, but Mr. McInnes also refused when it was increased by $5000. This beautiful and historic spot is held at about $65,000. A few years ago $40,000 would have bought it.

The Grand Division of Nova Scotia held its quarterly meeting on the 6th inst. The Grand Scribe reported an increase in membership of over 2000, making a total of 15,450 members of the Sons of Temperance in that Province. This is the strongest Grand Division in America.

Billy Reid, alias Buckskin Shorty, cowboy, and a hard case generally, was killed near Calgary in a drunken row Monday night. The murderer, another cowboy named McManus, was arrested by the mounted police. He claims self defence.

A fatal accident happened about four miles from Smithville. Two boys, sons of Harvey Fisher, were driving a wagon loaded with manure from the barnyard. They fell off, and one fell under the wagon wheel and was killed instantly.

MRS. MACKAY'S PICTURE.

The Inwardness of Her Trouble with the Artist, Meissonier.

[Labouchere in London Truth.]

Meissonier is in the habit of being sincere. Dragoons and horses do not ask to be flattered. Now he has chiefly painted both, as well as middle-aged and elderly gentlemen. Although his dear and almost life-long friend, the late victor Lefranc, was disfigured by the want of an eye, he did not, in portraying him, take a side view. On rare—very rare—occasions he was accused of embellishing women. But he was much younger when he incurred the reproach, and the heart perhaps, affected his vision. Sir Joshua Reynolds resolved never to get married from the hour in which he found that painting the portraits of ladies was his true vocation. He thus retained until an advanced time of life the capacity to see them with a halo around them. They were portrayed as his fancy painted them, and the witchcraft of the tender passion still hangs about their images.

Meissonier is tired of seeing painted and powdered Lady Jezebels in the great salons he frequents; he is 72 years old and has never understood the wax-doll style of prettiness. He abhors those aids to beauty to which fashionable belles nearly always resort and sees through them at once. It would give him far more pleasure to do a homely old woman, with a good and interesting face, than the fairest of the Lady Jezebels aforesaid. Meissonier thinks it a compliment to the intellect of the sitter to be truthful. In all his previous dealings with Americans he found that sincerity answered. Said Meissonier to me: "Mrs. Mackay has a very agreeable face and piquancy. She did not need to be idealized to make a charming picture. On the contrary, my idea was to give her immortality by stripping her of what was adventitious and bring out what was permanent and thoroughly personal." Every truth that he could tell pictorially about her was, in his opinion, borne a dire. She never complained of his sincerity in any of her visits to his studio and she did not forbid him to retain her portrait at the Triennial salon after it was agreed to prolong the period during which that exhibition was to be kept open.

Concerning the price, Meissonier takes 45,000 francs for a portrait like that of M. Victor Lefranc, in which the head is everything, and the dress the upper part of a frock-coat. He had not only to portray Mrs. Mackay, but her Rembrandt hat and feathers, a rich cloak, a rose in her breast, a dress rich in falbalas, a floor to harmonize with them, and a pair of Mousquetaire Swedish gloves. As he took a fancy to the work on which he was engaged, it became a labor of love to him, though not in the Sir Joshua sense. The effect of every tiny touch was calculated, and the greatest care taken to prevent details from spoiling the ensemble and to let in "plenty of air" upon the whole. Knowing how men suddenly rise to wealth and come down with crashes in the United States, Meissonier used to say to those around him: "It is possible that a hundred years hence nobody will remember that there ever was a Bonanza silver king or a Mackay family, but the whole world, I like to think, will have in its mind's eye the lady in the Rembrandt hat." The artist never worked so hard for immortality. The fates resolved that his chef d'oeuvre was not to live a year, and it was exhibited in a season when "everybody" was out of town.

INVITING IMMIGRATION.

The mainland of British Columbia, and this island in particular, is not likely soon to astonish the civilized world by the rapidity with which population keeps pouring into it, and settling upon the public domain. Immigrants are invited to come here, but when they do come, they meet with disappointment on every hand. Where are they to go to in the first place, and how are they to go anywhere; or, when they have gone, what means have they to come back again? These are their first questions. There is no system of internal communication and our coast service—what does that amount to? We are told that there is any quantity of splendid lands, capable of production and admirably suited for farming purposes, but we are told at the same time that there never has been a survey made of these fine possessions. Intending settlers have no means, unless, perhaps, in a very round about way, of ascertaining any definite information regarding them, such as they require at least, who come to settle on public lands. If they want to visit any particular point of the country at a distance, they find out that it can be done only at very uncertain and long intervals, with heavy expenses attending it, and, also, after undergoing considerable hardship, they have, likewise, to make their own surveys, or notes, in most cases, all of which incurs outlay, and means danger to human life, and it has, sometimes, resulted in its loss. Many people have come here and have quietly gone away again, very much disgusted, because of the difficulty in obtaining such necessary information as intending settlers must be provided with regarding public properties and supposing even they had gleaned some, little information under difficulties, it is of two indefinite a character to suit new comers. There should be more frequent and regular facilities provided for transportation to distant points, and a far more comprehensive, intelligent, and an entirely different method adopted than the present obscure system, which, for practical purposes, is a farce and a myth. The government lands should be surveyed and laid out in sections, or blocks, with a full description of their character and capabilities given to the public, without which the greater part of them will continue to be be worthless and to lie idle in the same wild condition they have been in from time immemorial. A change of some kind must therefore be made, or we must continue to remain with a sparse and limited population, fettered with a government ponderous enough for a population of a million or more inhabitants. Parts of the island have been settled for upwards of twenty years, and are permitted to have a mail service only twice a month, which of itself is enough to retard the progress of the finest country in the world. There must surely be some way to help ourselves out of these difficulties, and the sooner we adopt it the better.

NEWSPAPERS AND THEIR CRITICS.

The kindly advices tendered and the suggestions freely made by outside friends regarding the conduct of a newspaper, are as numerous as they are varied. The proper groove that should be followed, how the sails should be trimmed to catch the popular breeze, the rocks to avoid, and the only channel to take that can lead to success—all are pointed out. The manager of a newspaper is expected to lend a willing ear to all of this, to listen to oft repeated cautions and patiently bear up under the ordeal. He then finds out how little he really knows about the profession in which he has embarked. Every day or two fresh advisers, with the kindest intentions in the world and, doubtless out of the goodness of their hearts, come forward, offer their assistance and profer their advice, differing widely from what has already been given; much of it, too, may be excellent indeed, viewed from their individual standpoint, but the platforms suggested are usually far too narrow to prove acceptable to the public, outside of a very circumscribed circle. Newspaper critics are very numerous in all communities, and generally they are very similar in most of their ideas. They are ever ready fault finders, and are always expecting far more than they could ever accomplish in the capacity of caterer to the public through the columns of a daily journal.

Editors are pretty much the same as other people, so far at least as their failings and feelings are concerned. They are only human, and very human too, some of them, frail mortals as they are. A great deal more wisdom is usually attributed to them than they really possess, and which the correctness of their sayings and the computations they make denote. But these are done by dint of hard work, by constant perseverance, and faithful efforts in trying to serve their readers. The short space of time that elapses between the occurrence of an incident that happens, in the next block or it may be far off in the land of the antipodes—and its appearance in print, is often-times marvelous. The effort to satisfy the popular appetite, causes great anxiety and constant watching, with very hard work, much of which, too, is more thanklessly received than could be supposed. Articles and items of news cannot, and do not, neither are they expected to, suit the tastes or meet the views of every reader. Opinions differ widely on nearly all subjects and a writer with any originality behind his pencil, portraying his own ideas, cannot but be at variance with those held by many others. This will and does cause people to think, and may induce replies, which bring out what is really desirable to know.

It would be just as unreasonable to expect to please everybody, on all subjects, as it would be to find fault with a shoemaker because every pair of shoes in his shop did not fit the feet of one customer. In a well-assorted selection of interesting intelligence, editorial knowledge and ability is best displayed. The public can thus find something worth reading each to his own peculiar idea. A newspaper is far from being infallible, nor are editors and writers more incapable of error than the rest of mankind. They should, however, adhere rigidly to the truth, and no honest thinking writer who has his own respect and the honor of his calling at heart and knows the responsibility and great importance of his position, would knowingly deviate from such a course. The duty he owes to himself and his fellow men should never permit him, even to satisfy the morbid appetite of the many, even for a time, to forget that he should present a faithful portrait for public inspection—truth always being the attractive part of the picture the manner in which it is presented to the reader the framework in which it is displayed.

YESTERDAY'S DISPATCHES.

THE ATACK ON BERBER.

LONDON, June 14.—Egyptian advices state an Arab has arrived at Kovosko who claims to be thee sole survivor of the Berber garrison. He says he was present when the rebels attacked Berber on May 23d. MATTERS ABOUT GLADSTONE.

GLADSTONE URGED NOT TO RESIGN.

LONDON, June 15.—Sir Charles Dilke's paper, Weekly Dispatch, says Gladstone, in friendly conversation with one of his warmest supporters, declared he expected to be out of office in a few weeks. The Dispatch urges Gladstone, if defeated on the Egyptian policy, not to resign but to carry the franchise bill to the House of Lords, then dissolve parliament and appeal to the country on the general policy of the government. Ministerial statements for Egyptian conference will be withheld until response be received from the powers to Granville's note, in relation to the conference. The agents throughout the country are preparing for an election contest.

U. S. CONSUL SHOT AT BORDAUX.

BORDAUX, June 15.—At the balloon ascension at the Place Quinconce yesterday George W. Roosevelt, United States consul, and wife, were present. A French soldier fired a pistol at the American. A bullet passed through Roosevelt's hat, contused his head and knocked him over. The wounded man pointed out the soldier, but the latter, with two of his companions, escaped. It is supposed that the soldier mistook the consul for an officer in civilian's dress, against whom he had a grudge. The Commander of Bordaux has ordered an inquiry.

A FEARFUL RAILROAD WRECK.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 14.—By collision with an excursion train on the Camden road this morning, engineers Palmer and Baxter, conductor Smith, baggageman Vaughan, mail agent Wylie and fireman Bailey were killed, and many persons injured. The excursion party was of the Camden Presbyterian church. Frank Fenton, supervisor of the road, and G. Edwards were also killed on the Camden road accident. The crash was caused by the non-reception of a telegraph dispatch. Both engines were smashed. Nine persons are seriously injured. One passenger says that after the collision all scrambled out of the car, some by the windows, but escaping steam made it impossible for some time for any one to approach within 500 feet of the wreck. Great excitement existed among the people in the two trains, especially among women and children. When the news reached Camden a special train was made up and a dozen physicians departed for Ashland. Mail agent Wylie, who was under the debris, called out, "Here I am," but when taken out he was found to be shockingly lacerated, and death occurred very shortly after. Among the more seriously injured passengers are John and Willie Caskey. The supervisor of the road, Frank Fenton, was rescued after laborious work of two hours. He was terribly mangled and did not survive long. At the moment of the collision Conductor Smith was counting tickets in front of the car.

LOCAL NEWS.

Indian John Attempts to Commit Suicide.

BADLY HURT BY A RUNAWAY.

Act of a Highwayman—Annual School Election—Change in Time Table—Death of E. D. White.

A MARRIAGE IN HIGH LIFE.

A Serious Accident.

Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock Mr. Woolery, second engineer of the Geo. E. Starr, with Mr. Burns, steward of the steamer, and his wife, were out riding on the road near Cadburo bay. In making a sharp turn at a rapid rate the buggy was overturned, and the horses, which were somewhat wild, as is stated, escaped and ran away, breaking the buggy very considerably. The occupants were thrown violently to the ground, Mr. Woolery sustaining an ugly fracture of the shoulder blade. Mrs. Burns was injured in the back, it was at first thought very severely, but it afterwards proved that the wound was only a severe wrench, with bruises. The steward was also considerable jammed up, and, as yet, has by no means recovered from the soreness incident to the shock. Cadburo bay, where the accident occurred, is about two and a half miles away, and a courier arrived in breathless haste for another buggy at about 5 o'clock, with which to bring them to the city. Arriving there, they immediately received medical aid aboard the steamer, and this morning, just prior to the leaving of the Starr, when a TIMES man went aboard, found Mr. Woolery, who was probably the worst injured, in a cheerful condition, though the dislocated shoulder was causing him considerable pain.

The Fraser River Bridge.

The bridge over the Fraser river, on the line of the Canadian Pacific railway, was formally opened June 13. It is built on the canti-lever principle, and is believed to be the second bridge of the kind ever constructed on the American continent. The other one is built across the Niagara river, on the line of the Michigan Central railway, and is 909 feet 9 inches long, having a clean span across the river of 494 feet 9 inches. It has a double track, and, when opened on the 20th of December last, was tested under the weight of eighteen locomotives and twenty-four heavily loaded gravel cars. The Frith-o'-Fourth bridge, in Scotland, is being built on the same principle, and has a clear span of 1,600 feet. The Fraser bridge, which was opened last Thursday, has a clear span of 315 feet. The principle of the canti-lever is that of a trussed beam supported at or near its center, with the arms extended each way, and one end securely counterweighed to provide for unequal loading. In the Niagara bridge the uplifting force that can be exerted on each of the shore arms of the canti-lever is 340 tons. The opening of the Fraser bridge marks another epoch in the history of the Canadian Pacific railroad, and opens up to the settler and tourist another section of British Columbia.

A Popular Man Dead.

Mr. E. D. White, long and favorably known on this coast, having been connected with the East Coast Mail, is lying dangerously ill at St. Joseph's hospital. He was connected with the said Mail for over seven years in which capacity he made many friends, and from his obliging and courteous manner became very popular. A short time ago Mr. White went to San Francisco and purchased the Amelia for the People's Line of steamers, to run between Nanaimo and this port, and in which he has a large pecuniary interest. He has also been one of the chief promoters of the enterprise from its inception. The trouble and annoyance incident to properly starting has, doubtless, been the primary cause of his present illness. His friends are very anxious as to how it may terminate.

Since the above was put in type it has been ascertained that Mr. White died at about 11:40 to-day, and his friends have been telegraphed to. He made a will, leaving all his property to his father.

Mr. White was, some years ago, proprietor of the Oriental hotel restaurant. After that he had the Colonist routes and delivered that paper to subscribers. He then went into Mr. Spratt's employ as book-keeper for the Albion iron works, and was their purser of the steamers Maude and Wilson G. Hunt. He had been around Victoria for many years.

New Canadian Pacific Time Table.

A new time table went into effect yesterday on the Port Moody division of the Canadian Pacific railroad. The time for the arrival of trains, as announced by the Gazette, has been changed from 4 to 6:32 p.m., and the hour of departure is still 5 a. m. There will be three trains per week arriving Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and leaving Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Passengers entering trains without tickets at stations where tickets are sold will be subject to an additional charge of 75 cents. Port Moody has recently been made a ticket station, Mr. Earle Aitken, of the telegraph office, having been appointed ticket agent.

Blue Line Freight.

Mr. H. C. Eckenberger, the representative of the Blue Line fast freight, comprising from St. Paul to Chicago, the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Minneapolis, and the Chicago & Northwestern, who has been in the city since Tuesday last, left for his home in Portland this morning, having secured a very large amount of freight from our business men for his popular line. Mr. Eckenberger is very prompt in attending to all consignments of goods as well as very courteous withal to customers.

Anxious Passengers Aboard.

The steamer Eliza Anderson sailed for Port Townsend this morning, under contract with the Uncle Tom's Cabin Co., for their transportation there, where the troupe are under engagement for one night. The Anderson will wait there a day, so as to take the troupe away. Her "double," the Geo. E. Starr, sailed in her wake for Seattle, her passengers very anxious as to whether or no she would lay over at Port Townsend and wait for the Anderson.

Eloquent Lady Lecturer.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, the noted lady lawyer of Winterset, Iowa, well known also as a lecturer in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, is announced to speak in this city on Thursday and Friday evenings next.

A Great Orator Coming.

John B. Gough, the celebrated lecturer and worker in the temperance movement, is expected to visit Victoria some time during the present year.

Returns from Esquimalt district gives election to Mr. Campbell. Vote stands: Campbell 24; Williams 7.

SUNDAY SERMONS.

Brief Allusions to Some of the Discourses Delivered Yesterday.

For a time yesterday it appeared that church-goers would be forced to remain at home. It clouded up northward and westward in the morning, and a few drops of falling rain seemed to indicate that another rainy Sunday was before the people. In a brief time, however, it measurably cleared up, raining only a very little, and then at intervals, so that no inconvenience was perceived. The churches, therefore, were filled in about their old time manner both day and evening.

Last night Rev. Mr. Gamble, of the First Presbyterian church, taking his text from one of the Psalms, expounded in an entertaining manner to his audience on the grace of God. He said that man was nothing, and could be nothing without it. He said it was purely the gift of the Holy Spirit, and he proceeded with his argument, founding it on the shorter catechism and the Word of God itself. Concluding, he said: They talk about their new religions, but give me the old religion. I have had an opportunity of examining all of them, and I am satisfied with the religion of my fathers. I prefer them. I prefer them to any and all others. Get the love of God in your heart and this will answer all times and fit all occasions. Until you are assured of His love you can have no peace. Make your calling and election.

At the close of his sermon in the Methodist church last evening, Rev. Mr. Watson in a very forcible manner alluded to the "Social Evil," and urged the great necessity for energetic measures being taken towards its suppression, and of efforts being made for the reclamation of the fallen. The reverend gentleman gave as reasons for alluding publicly to the matter, that these houses were located in the heart of the city and the inmates were parading daily on the side walks and in carriages before the eyes of school children and respectable women. He expressed the hope, therefore, as a minister, that something would be done to suppress the evil.

At the Presbyterian church the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Stephens, yesterday forenoon delivered a very able address to his congregation. The pastor showed conclusively that without unity of purpose the strength was gone and success was endangered, whether in politics, in every day life, or in the church, itself. Members and pastor must be united; must understand and work each with the other, if good is expected to result. Some of the similes pictured were excellent, and the manner in which it was handled, gave evidence that he had an earnest interest in the subject he had chosen for his discourse.

In the Holy Bonds of Wedlock.

The marriage of an interesting young lady belonging to one of the first families here has set many of the fair sex on the "qui vive", to-day. The ceremony will take place at 8 o'clock to-night at the Reformed Episcopal church, where the services will be conducted by the Rev. Bishop Cridge. The happy bridegroom, Dr. Hanvey, is a popular young medical practitioner at Lytton, and the charming young bride is Miss Jennie Charles, the second daughter of Thomas Charles, Esq., of James Bay. The young couple have the best wishes of THE TIMES for their future happiness and prosperity and may they enjoy that happiness spoken of by Moore which he says:

There's a bliss beyond all the minstrel has told,
When two, that are linked in one heavenly tie,
With heart never changing, and brow never cold,
Love on thro' all ills, and love on till they die.

Over the Rockies.

On the 26th of May an important event in the history of the Dominion of Canada took place, when the rails of the Canadian Pacific railway were laid across the summit of the Rockies into British Columbia, thus uniting that Province by an iron band to its eastern sisters. To Mrs. Brothers, wife of Mr. F. P. Brothers, the track superintendent, and to Mr. Dickey, Government Railway Inspector, was allotted the pleasant task of driving the last spikes in the Northwest territory and the first in British Columbia.

Beats an Established Record.

Commenting on the announcement of THE TIMES that the steamer Queen of the Pacific had made the trip from Victoria to San Francisco in fifty-two hours, the Portland News says: She has made the best record of any boat running on the Pacific ocean. The distance between San Francisco and Victoria is about 830 miles, the steamer thus attaining an average speed of sixteen miles an hour. This beats the record of the State of California, which, in 1882, made the passage from San Francisto to Portland, 661 miles, in fifty hours and forty minutes, or thirteen miles per hour.

High Opinion of Port Moody.

T. B. Spring, a contractor at Tacoma, is at present in this city, accompanied by his wife. He has just arrived from Port Moody, where he has purchased a couple of lots, and taken a contract to build a large residence for a Mr. Robertson, of the Canadian Pacific terminal city. Mr. Spring announces it as his intention also, to soon erect a residence there of his own, which place he expects to make his future home. He predicts an early era of great prosperity for Port Moody.

PERSONAL.

Miss Clara B. Colby, editor of the Woman's Tribune, Beatrice, Nebraska, who has been in Oregon for some time past, arrived here on Saturday night last, in company with friends, and remained over until to-day, being very favorably impressed with this city.

Chas. Kennedy, general western passenger agent of the widely known and patronized Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, arrived here on the late steamer Saturday from Portland, where his central office is, and remained until to-day, visiting Esquimalt and other suburban points. Mr. Kennedy had previously made several visits to Victoria, and is becoming well and favorably known. He left for Portland this morning.

Mr. A. M. T. Campbell, special agent of the Canada Life Insurance Co., left for the mainland by the steamer Yosemite this morning.

An Honest Man Gone.

The dispatches announce that Charles F. Robbins, of the well-known firm of Blake, Robbins & Co., wholesale paper dealers, and a California State Prison Director, died on the morning of the 11th at his residence in Oakland, aged 53. Mr. Robbins was one of the best known men among publishers on the Pacific coast. He had long been in the business of manufacturing and supplying all kinds of paper, and was everywhere recognized as an honest, square-dealing man. His death is much regretted.

Water Main.

A pool of water accumulated last evening at the corner of Johnson and Douglas streets, caused by a defect in a joint of the main. Men were at once set to work and the evil remedied.

TRIED TO SUICIDE.

Indian John Found Nearly Dead, Hanging to a Tree.

At a late hour last night the people were surprised by the report that Indian John, who, for several days past has been in the employ of Mrs. A. Cavalho, at her store, had attempted to suicide on the reservation across the arm of the bay, by hanging himself to a tree. Inquiry developed the fact that the report was correct. It seems that some time yesterday some acquaintances of John, who had an unaccountable desire for

GETTING HIM DRUNK,

Came over and procured a supply of whisky. With this they set about to inveigle him to drinking and the Indian, who is represented as always having been almost if not entirely a teetotaler, as well as very honest and reliable, was persuaded to take such liberal potions that he speedily fell a victim to their wiles, and succumbed in maudlin drunkenness. He was left alone for a time, and, being missed on the return of his companions, a detour of the woods was made, and to the surprise of the discoverers he was found suspended to a tree, black in the face, the cord having cut into and lacerated his neck, and blackened it as well. The would-be suicide was

SPEEDILY CUT DOWN,

And carried to his cabin, where only his wife awaited him. Had he hung a moment more he must have choked to death. John was very weak and indisposed during the night, but managed to get over to town this morning. He said he knew nothing about the occurrence, and must have been temporarily insane. His wife, anxious that he should drink no more, got him into a canoe, and together they went to the northward to the Nitanit Indians, where, if he lives, they will remain until John gets over his desire for drink. John is about 25 years old, and used to work for Captain Spring, on the coast. Mrs. Cavalho regrets to lose him very much. He certainly came very near crossing the shadowy Styx.

Attempt at Highway Robbery.

In police court, before Judge Pemberton, this morning, W. Ryan was charged with having made an attempt to rob John Cooney, in the open street, at a late hour last night. Mr. Cooney, the prosecuting witness, who was called to the stand, said: Last night I was going home, and when I turned the corner of Government and Broughton streets, about 1 or 2 o'clock, the prisoner caught hold of my arm; I saw another man near, so I shoved the prisoner off, and ran down the street and told a policeman.

To Superintendent Bloomfield: He kept coming towards me after I shoved him off, but said nothing. Had seen him once before, but was not acquainted with him. He had no means of knowing that I had any money. To prisoner: You wanted to play billiards or cards with me. Prisoner to Judge: "I won three dollars at poker from him. He looked as if he had been drinking. I have lived in the city two months. Am a bartender." On application of Superintendent Bloomfield the case was remanded till to-morrow.

Arrested for a Vagrant.

In the police court to-day S. Snyder was charged with being a vagrant. Officer Redgrave testified that he had found the prisoner sleeping in a cabin and, as he would not give an account of himself, he arrested him. The prisoner stated that he arrived here on Saturday from the Canadian Pacific railroad, being on his way to California to work in the harvest fields. He had only enough money to pay his fare, so had lived on one meal per day and slept in a cabin. The Judge adjourned the case for three days, to give him a chance to leave the city.

Change in C. P. N. Steamers' Time.

The Canadian Pacific Navigation Company's steamers are now running through to Port Hammond on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, instead of Tuesdays and Fridays, as heretofore, connecting each trip with the train of the Canadian Pacific Railway company.

Met to Adjourn.

Mayor Carey, Judge A. F. Pemberton, and others, met at 11 a.m. to-day, as the regular board of licensing magistrates, but met only to adjourn, pending the Dominion Liquor License Act.

Hiring Victoria Carpenters.

The agent for the new hotel in New Westminster was among our Victoria carpenters yesterday making them offers to go to work on the structure. He wanted ten carpenters.

LOCAL NOTES.

U. S. Consul Stephens, of this city, has been apprised that Congress will be asked to render substantial pecuniary recognition to the A-hon-set Indians, who assisted the crew of the American ship Umatilla when she was sunk in Esquimalt harbor.

A. W. Lawson, for fast driving over James Bay bridge, was fined $2.50 this morning by Judge Pemberton.

The cricket match Saturday was won by the Cathedral Institute club.

Marine Matters.

The steamer Wilmington did not sail for Victoria until Wednesday last. She is due here now.

The Queen of the Pacific sails from here to-morrow at noon for San Francisco.

The steamer Ruby is being detained here by the inspector in consequence of a defect in her boiler.

Morning Steamers.

At 7 o'clock this morning the following steamers left the wharf: R. P. Rithet, for Nanaimo; Yosemite, for New Westminster; Geo. E. Starr and Eliza Anderson, for Port Townsend.

Proposed Horse Race.

Another race is talked of between the horses owned by Mr. C. N. Cameron and Mr. P. Briggs. A former race on Beacon Hill resulted in a victory for Mr. Cameron.

Sardonyx.

The steamer Sardonyx arrived this morning from the east coast.

The first two numbers of the Victoria Daily TIMES are at hand. It is a neatly printed and well prepared local paper and seems to have started with a better patronage than is secured by most new ventures. Its manager, Thomas Gardiner, was formerly manager of the Telegram, and is well known in Portland. Several others of the force are also from Portland, among them C. M. Cox, of the local staff of the Telegram, Miss Ada Coburn, of the Telegram composing room, and Gus Bynon, of the Farmer's Gazette, who is foreman of the office. From this array of names it is certain the new paper will have a warm side for Portland, and the Telegram could not see so many of its old employe's engaged in a new enterprise without wishing them all the utmost success.—Portland Telegram.

THE BARBARA BOSCOWITZ.

She Arrives With Interesting News—Furs, Canneries, Skeena Gold Mines. Her Passenger and Freight Lists.

The steamer Barbara Boscowitz, Capt. Williams, arrived down from Naas river and way ports this morning, and is now moored at Spratt's wharf, where she is discharging cargo. The Boscowits makes trips to Naas river twice a month. It takes six days to reach it from here, the distance being about 800 miles, or as far as across the great States of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and well into New York. This means a long distance northward from this city. The steamer brought the following freights:

Windsor Canning Co. to H. Sanders, 412 cases of salmon; James Gray to same, 57 half barrels salt oolachans, 176 kits of same, and 200 boxes smoked of same; British American Packing Co. to Marion & Tilton, 300 cases salmon; Cooper & Donahue to Fairbrother, 250 boxes smoked oolachans, 100 kits salted, 30 quarter-barrels; Hudson Bay Co. 19 packages furs, 15 drums of oil. She also brought 8000 feet of fine cedar lumber from the Victoria mills, at Rivers Inlet, to Mr. H. Sanders, the agent here.

The passengers were: A. Ornie, L. Ornie, W. Lund, J. Carthew, M. Hart, W. Rainbow, Lumley Graham, and five Indians. The Messrs. A. and L. Ornie mentioned are brothers, who have been mining in the new gold district on the Skeena river. They brought down some very fine specimens of coarse gold with them. There is some copper there, also, and there are indications that the latter mineral will be found in considerable quantities. The Ornie brothers, however, do not think much of the new district, and do not intend to go back. There are about fourteen men working there, and there is one mine, owned by McDame & Co., that is really rich, and is paying very well.

The canneries are all announced to be running in the north country, and to be doing well. They anticipate a big catch during the remainder of the year. The Inverness has already caught and packed about 2,500 cases. The Windsor company, Balmoral, British American and Skeena packing companies, on the Skeena river, are all doing equally as well as the Inverness. The weather is very fine. The Naas river is the farthest northern point reached by steamer in British Columbia. THE TIMES is under obligations to Mr. J. H. Gannon, the gentlemanly purser of the Boscowitz, for the facts submitted herewith.

ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION.

Important News Regarding It in the Several Wards.

The first annual election under the new School Act took place to-day. Before this only three trustees have been elected, but now two are elected for each of the three wards. More than this, the usual amount of interest attaches to this election, as it is the first at which the ladies have had the privilege of voting. For about a week past two ticket have been in the field and the friends of the different candidates have been indefatigable in their efforts to secure their success. Every householder, of six months' standing, and his wife are entitled to vote in each ward in the city, and consequently a very large vote is being polled.

The nomination took place between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock a. m., and the following names were placed in nomination:

Johnson street ward:—W. A. Robertson, Esq., nominated by Messrs. James Burnes and Robert Hicks. Samuel Perry Mills, nominated by John McKenzie and Wm. Dalby. Coote M. Chambers, nominated by Simeon Duck and D. W. Higgins. David Spencer, nominated by Jas. E. McMillan and Joseph G. Halpenny Yates street ward; Chas. Hayward, Esq., by C. Booth and G. Doughty; John Braden, Esq., by A. Bossi and J. R. McKenzie; Alex. Wilson, Esq., by W. D. McKillican and W. L. Burgess; Wm. Denny, Esq., by T. S. Bone and W. D. McKillican.

At 12 o'clock the polling started, and throughout the whole afternoon throngs of ladies and gentlemen have been thronging from one polling booth to another to deposit their votes. In each booth a trio of ladies stand and present to each voter a ticket with the names of their favorite candidates printed on it. In St. James Bay ward the ticket supported by the ladies, is Messrs. McMicking and Harris; in Yates street ward, Messrs. Denny and Wilson, and in Johnson street ward Messrs. Chambers and Spencer.

The foregoing was also called the "Blue Ribbon" ticket. The other ticket, called the "Liberal," consisted of the following-named: James Bay Ward—Messrs. Boyd and Fell. Yates Street Ward—Hayward and Braden. Johnson Street Ward—C. M. Chambers and W. A. Robertson.

THE RESULT.

At the time of going to press the polling is still going on, and, although it is impossible to give the vote polled, sufficient is known to show that what is called the "Liberal" ticket has been elected in every ward by a large majority.

CAUSES OF PAUPERISM.

Some Figures Suggestive to the Philanthrophical Investigator.

[Chicago News.]

A Mr. McDougall, of Manchester, England, has investigated the subject in the workhouses of his city, and the results of his inquiries are worth attention. His investigations were confined to 254 cases, which did not include epileptics or lunatics.

Divided into classes, he founded that the first class—embracing pauperism caused by old age or infirmity—contained nearly one-eighth of the paupers of the city. The second class, embracing those diseased or disabled by accident (not caused by misconduct), included about one-seventh of the paupers. The third class, composed of those who were unable to find work although willing to work, was about one-fortieth of the whole. The fourth class, embracing those who were idle and thriftless, apart from drunken or immoral habits, did not contain a single case. The fifth class, those made paupers by drunkenness in men, embraced one-fourth of all the poor. The sixth class, in which pauperism was caused by drunkenness in women, contained one-twentieth of the whole. The seventh class was the widows and children of drunkards, which numbered one-fifth of the paupers. The eighth class, being the widows and children of sober husbands, had one-sixth of the paupers. The ninth class, widows of sober husbands who had drunken sons, numbered 1 per cent. of the paupers; and the tenth class, widows reduced to pauperism through immoral (not drunken) practices of husbands, the number is not given.

Briefly these facts show that drunkenness is responsible for 51¼ per cent. of the pauperism in Manchester, while 48¾ per cent is due to all other causes combined. It would be a valuable contribution to statistical literature if some painstaking philanthropist would investigate the causes of pauperism in the large cities of our own country, although it is not probable the results would greatly differ from those reached by Mr. McDougall.

A Cowboy's Boldness.

[Chicago Herald "Train Talk."]

"One of the slickest things I saw in my travels," said a passenger from the west, "was a cowboy stopping a cattle stampede. A herd of about six or eight hundred had got frightened at something and broke away pell-mell, with their tails in the air, and the bulls at the head of the procession. But Mr. Cowboy didn't get excited when he saw the herd was going straight for a high bluff, where they would certainly tumble down into the canyon and be killed. You know that when a herd like that gets to going they can't stop, no matter whether they rush to death or not. Those in the rear crowd those ahead, and away they go. I wouldn't have given $1 a head for that herd, but the cowboy spurred up his mustang, made a little detour, came in right in front of the herd, cut across their path at a right angle, and then galloped leisurely on to the edge of that bluff, halted and looked around at that wild mass of beef coming right toward him.

"He was as cool as a cucumber, though I expected to see him killed, and was so excited I could not speak. Well, sir, when the leaders got within about a quarter of a mile of him I saw them slack up, though they could not do it very quick. But the whole herd seemed to want to stop, and when the cows and steers in the rear got about where the cowboy had cut across their path I was surprised to see them stop and commence to nibble at the grass. Then the whole herd stopped, wheeled, straggled back and went to fighting for a chance to eat where the rear guard was. You see, that cowboy had opened a big bag of salt he had brought out from the ranch to give the cattle, galloped across the herd's course and emptied the bag. Every critter sniffed that line of salt, and, of course, that broke up the stampede. But I tell you it was a queer sight to see that cuss out there on the edge of that bluff quietly rolling a cigarette, when it seemed as if he'd be lying under 300 tons of beef in about a minute and a half."

She Would Not, and She Did Not.

[Whitehall Review.]

"The Law and the Lady" had a set-to the other day at Edgbaston, near Birmingham. The lady brought an action against her landlord at the assizes, lost it, and was adjudged to pay the defendant's costs, which came to £164. This she was either unable or unwilling to do, and when the hard-hearted myrmidons of the law came to distrain upon her furniture, she simply locked them out. They set a watch outside, and resolved to starve the inmates of the house into surrender. By day they watched, in company with crowds of sight-seers; by night they bivouacked by fires which they lit for the purpose. An attempt to gain an entrance by stratagem failed; and a gallant effort made by a friend to relieve the garrison by pitching loaves in at a back window failed also.

Meanwhile we are told that the lady and her friends sat at the window and amused themselves by watching the crowd, and by heaping coals of fire on the heads of their persecutors in the shape of rugs to sleep on and cans of hot tea for their refreshment. At last the garrison was starved out, and surrendered at discretion. The triumph of the law seemed complete. But when the besiegers entered and took possession, they found that all the furniture then in the house was not worth more than 40 shillings.

Denis Kearney's New Business.

[New York Star.]

My old acquaintance, Denis Kearney, whom I have not seen since I met him on the steps of the Astor house six months ago, writes me from San Francisco, announcing that he has opened an intelligence office, "for the purpose of encouraging girls to come into this state, to supplant the 7,000 or 8,000 Chinese 'chambermaids,' now reluctantly employed by families in San Francisco." Denis adds, "these 8,000 Chinese chambermaids earn and send to China an average of $2,000,000 every year. This $2,000,000 is taken out of circulation and naturally contracts local trade and business to that amount. Those families will be only too willing to let them go. Good girls willing and able to work can find plenty of it here. If among our circle of readers there are any who desire to come to California, let them communicate with me. I will have situations ready for them to step into the moment they arrive."

More Attention Next Time.

[French Fun.]

At a marriage celebration the bride was requested to sign her name to the register at the sacristy. Excitement caused her fingers to tremble; she took the pen, signed, and made an enormous ink-blot. "Must I do it over again?" she blushingly asked her husband. "No, I guess that will do, but—" "Oh, don't scold me! I will pay more attention next time."

THE ROCK OF TH... A Fine Figure ... THE SUN.

...t of a Newspaper ...velist's Brain.

...eph Mulhattan Makes Another Wonderful Discovery—A Prehistoric City Peculiar to His Own.

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., March 23.—Six miles east of this city lies the "Rock of the Sun." It is covered with queer hieroglyphics and rude figures representing men, animals and events of a prehistoric period. It is chiseled round and smooth, is 49 feet 3 inches in diameter by 14 feet 2½ inches in thickness.

It is evidently a grand monument placed there by the Aztecs to commemorate some great event. How such a huge body was ever placed there will forever remain a mystery, as it is upon a level plain and at least six miles from any rocks of similar origin.

For generations past this "Rock of the Sun" has been a favorite place to drive to from this city, and thousands of people have visited it annually. Brief descriptions of it have appeared from time to time in the press of this county. Some two weeks ago the writer of this article and a number of others interested in scientific research decided to make some excavations in the vicinity of this prehistoric monument. Work was commenced March 6, and after considerable labor with men, teams, and road-scrapers, our efforts were rewarded with one of the greatest discoveries ever made on the American continent. At a depth of six feet we discovered a prehistoric city, an exact fac-simile of many discovered nearly a century ago in New Mexico near Santa Fe. We have already removed the light loamy soil and sand from a portion of one of the streets and have entered the houses of the silent prehistoric city. The unfortunate inhabitants were undoubtedly surprised by a flood, as the streets and houses are filled with driftwood, leaves and sand. Many of the bodies found are still in a perfect state of preservation, having the appearance of Egyptian mummies. Vessels of bronze and numerous gold ornaments are found in many of the houses. Yesterday we unearthed one of their temples, in which was an altar and stone seats; also ornaments of gold, representing the sun, which gives conclusive evidence that they were a race of sun worshipers. The streets are macadamized with river bowlders, and the houses are built of stone and adobe, the architecture corresponding in every particular to that of the Mexicans of the present day.

This monument of the sun was undoubtedly placed there by the survivors of this ill-fated city, many of whom undoubtedly escaped to the caves in the immediate vicinity. The why or the wherefore of the great flood that destroyed this city will, of course, forever remain a matter of conjecture. The scene of our labors is in an out of the way portion of the country, the road to which, from Hopkinsville, is merely a trail through canebrakes and swamps, and the place is totally inaccessible during the winter freshets. Poud river, Green river and Little river all contribute their volume of overflow to fill the swamps. We propose to remove all we possibly can to Hopkinsville before the freshets set in, and also devise some means to prevent the overflow of our excavations. Prof. John P. Barrett, of Hartford, Ky., Hon. Hunter Wood, of The Hopkinsville New Era, C. M. Meacham, of The Kentuckian, Col. J. Polk Johnston, of The Courier-Journal, and B. F. Ridgely, Esq., of The Louisville Commercial, are now here and complete reports of this interesting discovery will appear in their respective journals.
